"Tapping the Smart Gardener's Work Force—Predators, Parasitoids and Pollinators!"

Elly Maxwell Entomologist, Dow Gardens, Midland MI

Insects are the most abundant wildlife visitor to backyards in Michigan. Although some may be considered pests, an even greater number are beneficial. Join Dow Garden's Entomologist Elly Maxwell, on an exuberant educational journey to help you recognize and maximize Mother Nature's natural pest control. By creating a great work environment (your garden), you will harness the planet's largest work force —beneficial insects.

"Vegetable Potpourri for the Smart Gardener"

Rebecca Krans Michigan State University Extension

Whether a seasoned or novice vegetable gardener, learn "Smart Gardening" techniques that will help your gardens flourish. Learn additional ways to make use of cover crops, composting, and flowers to attract beneficial insects within your vegetable garden! Make use of companion planting techniques that help you expand your space and extend your vegetable harvest beyond the end of the growing season.

"Grow More with Less-a Smart Approach to Gardening!"

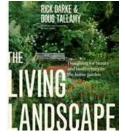

Vincent Simeone Horticulturist, Author, Lecturer Oyster Bay, NY
